

Assessment for Learning Example

TASK: Write an essay about the dangers facing the human race.

- Learning Objective
 - Write accurately and persuasively.
 - Use reasons to support conclusions in argument.
-

Is the biggest threat to humanity, the human race itself?

Humans must amend their behaviour, or we will have to pay a big price. Humans are destroying the world, by pollution, deforestation, war, and in many other ways. I believe that the biggest threat to humanity is the human race itself. In this essay, I will show you why.

If humans keep cutting down so many trees, there will be far too much carbon dioxide in the atmosphere. If there is too much carbon dioxide in the atmosphere, this will lead to extreme global warming. We take in oxygen, and give out carbon dioxide. Trees take in carbon dioxide, and give out oxygen. So trees are only stopping some of the carbon dioxide going in to the atmosphere, they are also giving us oxygen. Imagine what would happen if there were not enough trees on Earth.

(9 Year-Old Pupil)